U.N. Planes Fired On Near Massacre Site

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — United Nations jet planes were fired on early today in the Katanga area of northern Katanga by Congolese troops believed responsible for the massacre of 19 Roman Catholic missionaries Jan. 1, a U.N. spokesman reported.

The spokesman said two Indian Canberra jets were on a reconnaissance flight in the Katanga area when they were fired upon.

He said the jets reported back that there was no sign of any Congolese troops at Sola, the village on the border of Katanga and Kivu provinces where it was feared a second massacre has taken place.

He said the planes were fired on by Congolese troops marching toward Katanga in northern Katanga along the road from Kibuli. The jets did not return the fire, he reported.

The spokesman said the United Nations was very concerned about the absence of any signs of life around Sola, where 15 Roman Catholic priests and nuns were reported under attack Friday by rebel Congolese soldiers and a band of young African fanatics who practice witchcraft.

Suspect Reds Of Mine Ring In W. Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—A land mine exploded 100 yards inside the Communist barbed wire border between East Germany and West Berlin today.

Western police said it confirmed their suspicions that the Communists have planted a deadly ring of mines around West Berlin.

A person who appeared to be an East German border guard was either injured or killed in the blast this morning inside the Soviet Zone where it borders the French sector in north Berlin, Western police said.

The incident was witnessed by a Western policeman on guard duty on the other side of the triple barbed-wire fence.

West Berlin police said it proved that the Communists have planted anti-refugee mines along the 75-mile border between West Berlin and East Germany. This border is distinct from the Communist wall dividing East Berlin from the Western zone of the city.

The scene of today's incident was partly obscured from the Western side by bushes. But police said there were no indications that it might have been a refugee who stepped on the mine.

Western police said it was broad daylight, making it impossible for a refugee to get that close to the border unseen. For that reason, they said, it appeared the victim was a patrolling Communist border guard.

The latest border incident came shortly after the East German Communist news agency ADN said that two Cuban artists have claimed they were shanghaied from East Berlin to the West by American intelligence agents.

Snow Reports Vary In Pa.

By United Press International
Snow reports in Pennsylvania today varied from just a trace to accumulations of four inches.

The snowfall during the night and early morning was described by the weatherman as generally light. Hardest hit areas were Blairsville and Elizabeth, where four inches of snow were reported. Among the areas with three inches were Williamsport, Franklin, Charleroi and Braddock.

The weather bureau said no further accumulation of snow was expected today although there will be flurries. Temperatures today were expected to vary from the teens in the Northwest to near 30 in the Southeast.

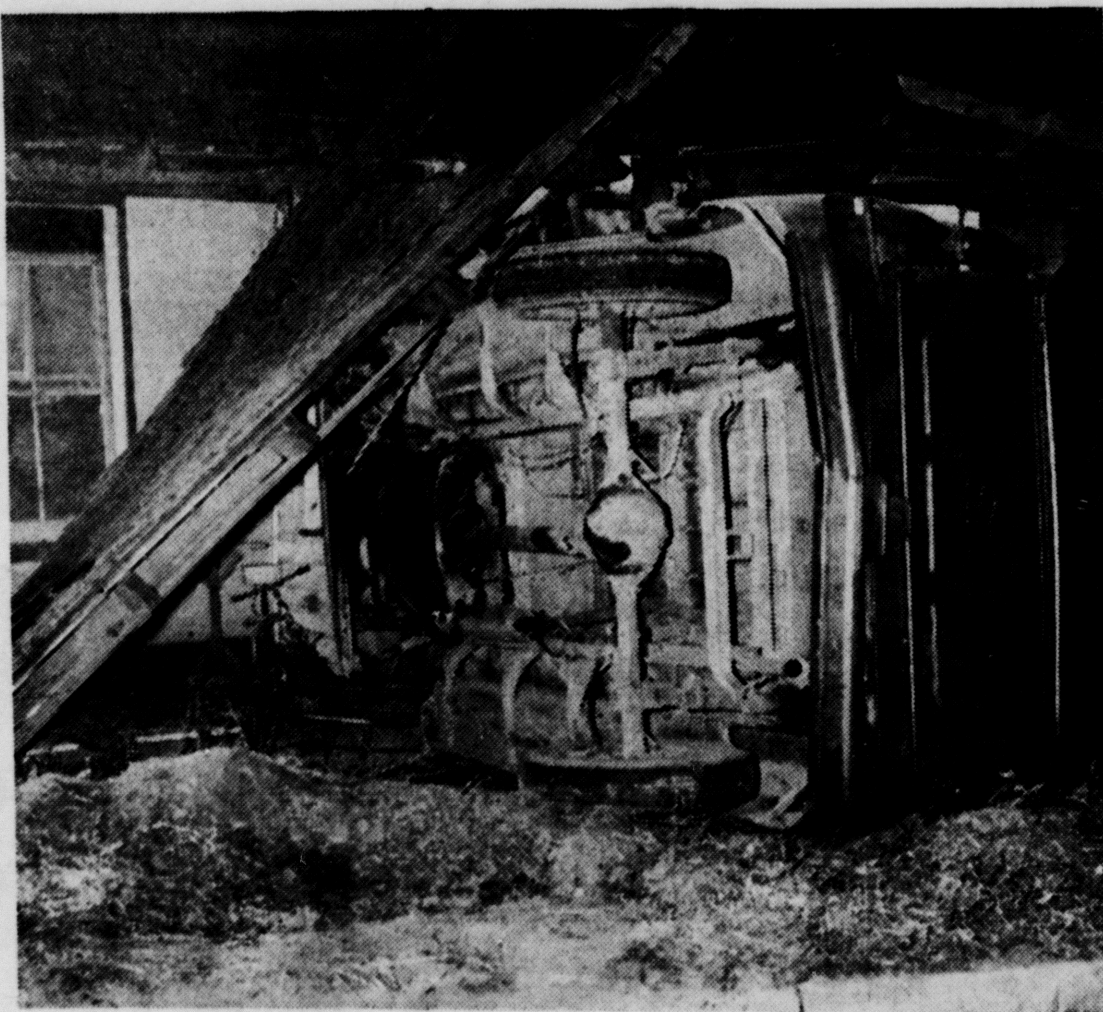

Greensburg state police reported that roads in their area were very slippery but had been cindered. Most other areas reported roads snow covered and advised motorists to slow down for safety.

Snow began falling early Friday in Pittsburgh and by the time the evening rush hour started, motorists found themselves tied up in major traffic jams. Police reported a rash of minor traffic accidents but no serious ones.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today, high near 30. Fair and cold tonight and tomorrow; low tonight, 10-15. High tomorrow in upper 20s. Monday, fair and continued cold.

Pickets Agree On 'Cooling Off' Period

Pickets from Local 542 of the International Union of Operating Engineers left the scene of the Lower Southampton Municipal Authority's sewer installation project yesterday.

Rank and file members consented, through their business representatives, to a "cooling off" period of an undetermined length during which they will not harass workers of District 50 of the United Mine Workers of America who are employed by the Tripp Construction Co. on the project.

The Tripp Co. recently was awarded the contract for the municipal authority job after its low bid was accepted by the township supervisors.

Focal Point
The focal point of the picketing has been on Trevoise Road at Poquessing Creek. Local 542 is protesting Tripp's employment of out-of-state workers.

George Tripp, head supervisor of the local operations, says that he would be glad to hire local people if he could do so without going through the hiring hall of Local 542.

Thursday, a total of nine men from the union local were given two separate hearings before Oakford JP John Estlow on charges of breach of the peace. All have been released on $500 bail.

Six of the nine were from Philadelphia, and one was from New Jersey.

Township officials are trying to arrange a negotiation session.

Shot At Moon 'On Again'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—An "off-again-on-again" U.S. shot at the moon is back on the firing schedule for next week, but it is a scientific longshot.

After first calling off the launching, indefinitely, scientists did an about-face Friday night and decided they still had a chance to rocket a camera-carrying Ranger-3 capsule to the moon next Friday or Saturday.

But the chances that it would come off next week were described alternately by scientists as "slim" and "remote" and "not very optimistic."

Original plans to fire the 727-pound Ranger-3 spacecraft 240,000 miles across space Monday were blocked Friday by rocket troubles that were described as "pretty serious."

Sources said the difficulties cropped up in a fueling test of (Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

Bucks County Salaries

Two Commissioners Defend Pay Raises

The Bucks County salary board has adopted 90 per cent of the 1962 salaries recommended by the Pennsylvania Economy League for the county's 360 employees. County Commissioners Edward B. Boyer and Adolph A. Andrews said today.

They disagreed with criticism by Commissioner John J. Bodley that Boyer is "taking care of his friends" in the new pay schedule.

Voting Together
Boyer is Republican and Andrews a Democrat, but they have been voting together on recent appointments and against the desires of Republican Commissioner Bodley.

The 1962 salaries are reported to total $1,617,920, an increase of $162,000 over those of last year. Almost all county employees are scheduled for pay raises, some big some small.

They will be the first general raises granted by the present county commissioners. The previous board twice granted cost-of-living raises.

Says "Political"
Bodley cited as "politically inspired" pay raises of $842 to Louis (Continued on Page 3, Col. 7)

Flies Back To Washington Kennedy Enjoys Rare Night At The Theater

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Kennedy flew back to Washington today for an important conference on intelligence and a political speech after a rare night out at the theater.

The President returned to the capital aboard a four-engine Air Force plane after learning that a substantial snowfall predicted for the Washington area Friday night failed to materialize. White House aides had planned railroad transportation as an alternative, but the snow was barely measurable at Washington National Airport.

The Chief Executive was due back at the White House for a conference with the U.S. Intelligence Board, an advisory and review body headed by Dr. James Killian.

The President also planned a lunch at the White House with Democratic leaders preparatory to a $100-a-plate party fund raising sand at the National Armory.

Kennedy's lunch guests include Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, former President Truman and ranking members of the national Democratic organization.

Levittown Man Hurt In Twp. Crash

A Bristol Township youth was killed and a companion seriously injured about 1:30 a.m. today when the car in which they were riding went out of control, hit a four-foot embankment, and landed in a field next to Oxford Valley Road north of the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Pronounced dead at the scene of the accident was Mahlon Casperson, 19 of 1847 Parkview Ave., Fergusonville.

His companion, Samuel T. Prince, 29, of 35 Iroquois Road, Indiana Creek Levittown, is undergoing treatment this morning for a possible fracture of the hip and possible internal injuries at Lower Bucks County Hospital. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

Bristol Township Patrolman Aaron Kelton said that Casperson died of injuries sustained when the car landed on top of him. Kelton said that police had not determined who was driving the auto.

Kelton, from an account given by witnesses and after making a preliminary investigation gave this account of how the accident occurred:

The two were riding north on Oxford Valley Road in a 1954 sedan at about 1:30 a.m.

As the car came off the Turnpike overpass, the driver apparently lost control of the car. The vehicle swerved to the right, then to the left for about 154 feet.

Hits Embankment
The vehicle then struck an embankment, hurtled nearly 50 feet through the air, came to earth and then rolled end over end.

Kelton said that Casperson was found lying partially under the car. His companion was lying halfway out a window, the patrolman said. He said it was necessary for a tow truck to lift the vehicle straight up in the air in order to free the two men.

Kelton estimated that the car finally came to rest some 315 feet from the point where it first went out of control.

Casperson was pronounced dead by Dr. J. Nevin Briggs of Lower Bucks County Hospital. The two were taken to the hospital by the Bristol and Bucks County Emergency squads.

Casperson comes from a family of eight children. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Casperson and four sisters and three brothers.

Prince is married. Mrs. Prince told police that her husband had left the house in his 1954 sedan about 10 p.m.

Kelton was assisted by patrolmen Gerald Stemrich, Thomas Duffy and Kenneth Underdown in the investigation.

Boys' Hopes Rest On Dog

PHILIPSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Fading hopes for two boys lost and believed trapped by a rockfall in an abandoned clay mine rested today on a black Labrador retriever.

The dog, named Jet, was brought here Friday night in a last-ditch move to find Wesley Lowe, 13, and Larry Husted, 10, before state mine officials begin clearing the fall with draglines, huge earth-chewing machines. The youths have been missing since Sunday afternoon when they left their homes in nearby Osceola Mills.

State Mines Secretary Lewis E. Evans said he would decide later today whether to give the go-ahead to bring in the draglines. Evans said his decision would be based on the dog's success.

Sniffs Clothing
Jet sniffed particles of the youngsters' clothing shortly after he was brought here and then was taken into two shafts entering the 15-mile underground honeycomb. Sheriff James Reese said a "very, very thorough search" (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

In Mysterious India

Prince Out, Gray Enjoys His Palace

By GEORGE G. GRAY
Editor, Courier-Times

HYDERABAD, INDIA, Jan. 12 — Delayed — Right now I am sitting on a high balcony of a 200-year-old palace, until 1954 the home of one of the Orient's richest princes, Noazamjah Bhadr.

He was the junior prince of the Hyderabad province and had a good thing going for himself until the early 50's when princes started going out of style as the result of the Constitution of the Republic of India, a document fashioned after that of both the United States and Great Britain, including a Bill of Rights.

Now the Hillfort Palace is the modern Ritz Hotel, the finest in this disconnected city of 800,000 people, the capital of another of India's 15 states.

At the moment I'm not envious of the prince. Indeed, I'm glad he had to find a new house. If he hadn't gotten his eviction notice I wouldn't be lounging on this luxurious veranda thrilling at the panorama of the city and trying to make sense of the rhapsody of mysterious sounds of a mysterious land. And, incidentally, basking under perfectly cloudless skies and being gun-shy of sunburn. The mid-winter temperature is 85 degrees.

I am still sorting out a lot of impressions of Bombay, of people I met as a member of a party of 30 American newspaper editors from 21 states making a study of the Far East and circling the globe.

More lucid expression of these impressions will have to wait.

Yet there is no need for delay in relaying a suggestion from Governor Shi Prakasa of the state of Maharashtra, of which Bombay is the capital, with whom we visited for an hour or so, that America would do well to stop exporting many of Hollywood's movies.

"Our people get the wrong impression of America, Americans and the American way of life because of many of these movies," he said.

"One would suppose that your country is completely preoccupied with sex, that nobody ever stays married, and that a great majority of your people ride wild horses and carry Colt 45's."

Governor Prakasa didn't say as much, but there was no doubt about the implication that our export movies aren't doing much to improve the image of the United States in these Oriental countries where image improvement is essential.

The editors' party had tea with the governor on the lawn of his magnificent home after returning from a visit to the world-famous cave temple on Elephanta Island six miles across the bay from Bombay.

This was supposed to be a cultural break, I guess, but it was more of an adventure than a venture.

We crossed the choppy waters of the busy harbor and bay in a couple of ancient motor launches manned by crews of a half dozen bare-footed Indians having themselves a ball for the benefit of the visiting firemen and only the less timid of our party figured we'd get back without a long-distance swim.

After disembarking on the island, I climbed two miles of stone steps, disdaining chair-carriers, and quite naturally discovered at the end of the ascent, the inevitable bottle of "Coke" at a concession stand operated Indian-style.

I wouldn't suggest a trip to India to visit the cave, but it has its interesting points.

It's really a huge temple of worship carved out of a solid chunk of rock in the seventh century and dedicated to Shiva, one of the gods worshipped by the Hindus for 4,000 years.

I know as much about the talented artisans as I know about the chances of rocketing to the moon.

Yet I couldn't help but be impressed with the beauty of the temple and its pillars and the many symbolic figures hewn out of the rock by sculptors who would put our present day chiselers to shame.

Shiva was quite a god. In the Hindu faith he still is. In the mythology of the faith, Shiva was the god of destruction. This was not bad. He created everything good by destroying everything evil.

I'm not sure I received any spiritual uplift from the cave temple but it was a worthwhile experience nevertheless.

Had I skipped it I would have missed my first (Continued on Page 3, Col. 7) was made but with no luck. More entries were set for today.

Inside the mine with the animal were Sheriff Reese, three mine inspectors and the boys' fathers, Ernest Lowe and Eugene Husted. Lowe said he last saw his son Sunday afternoon when he returned home with mud on his back after leaving in the morning. "When I asked him where he got it, he said he was exploring," Lowe said.

Many of the volunteer rescue workers were sent home Friday night when a heavy snow began to fall, covering the rugged area in central Pennsylvania woodlands with about three inches of snow.

But the search went on inside. Expert miners using hand tools probed various tunnels, shoring them up as they went. The risk was great.

"Any man that enters that mine is in danger of being trapped at any minute," explained Reese. "But these (rescuers) are good, old coal and clay miners. They're professionals at this."

When the Labrador retriever arrived, the hand-digging was halted. It will not be resumed unless Jet finds some trace of the boys. If he does not, the draglines will be put into operation.

Officials Friday considered the possibility of sending scuba divers into the mine when pools of murky water were discovered. That idea was dropped when the water was deemed too muddy. Officials also discounted draining the mine.

Although it had not been determined if the boys were still alive, experts said they could survive for 10 days if not trapped by the rocks. Today is the seventh day. The elder Lowe, his voice wavering, said he still had faith they would be found alive.

"No matter what happens," he murmured, "you still have to keep on hoping."

Parkland Fire Damages Home

Fire yesterday swept a first floor bedroom in the home of Wilby Miller, 876 Parker St., Parkland, according to William Ott, assistant chief of the Parkland Fire Company.

Ott estimated damage at $300. No one was injured in the blaze which, Ott said, apparently originated when an electric blanket shorted out.

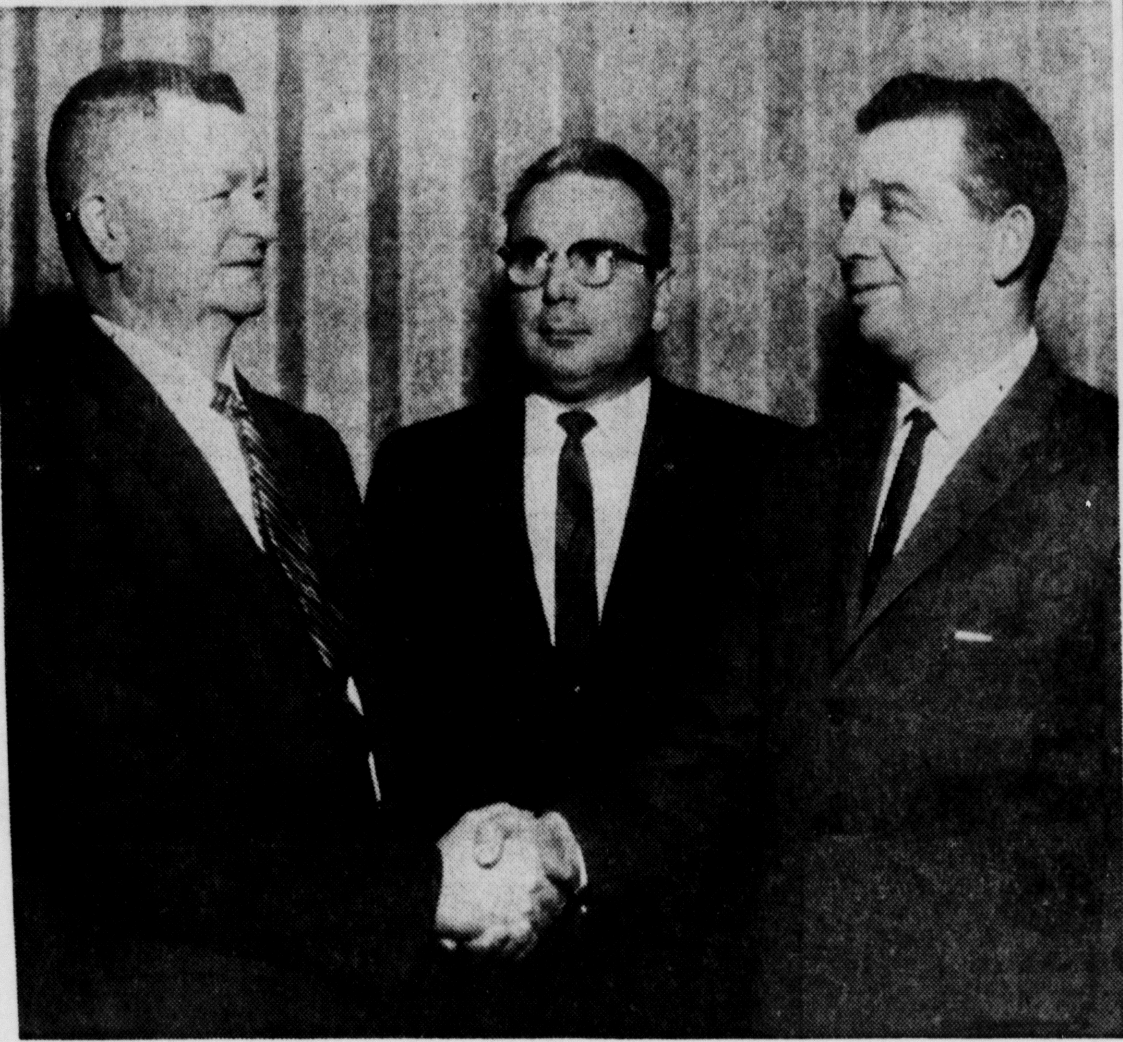

The fire was discovered about 10 a.m. Mrs. Miller, who was alone in the house with her grandson, called the fire company.

A passing mailman, Robert Chambers, of Fairless Hills, helped Mrs. Miller remove the blazing mattress from the home, but the room caught fire despite their efforts.

Firemen of the Parkland and Pennell Fire Companies extinguished the blaze in 20 minutes. Five trucks were dispatched to the scene.

Ott said Mrs. Miller told firemen the bedroom had been occupied since 6 a.m. She and her grandson were watching TV when the fire was discovered.

Bucks Man Wills Estate To Wife

Edward C. Riley, former vice president of General Motors Corp., left his entire estate to his wife, Winifred, according to the provisions of his will filed with Bucks County Register of Wills William J. Veitch Jr.

His estate is estimated for probate purposes as $100,000 and in personal property and $20,000 and in real estate. Riley, whose Lumberville farm is one of Bucks County's showplaces, died in Florida Jan. 7. He was 67. Mrs. Riley, along with Kenneth W. Gemmill, a friend of the family, were named executors. Riley joined the General Motors Export Co. in 1922, and by 1941 was appointed a vice president of the giant corporation.

U.N. Planes

and the pilots reported that the village was in flames.

Mission Appears Deserted

The pilots said the college and mission where the nuns and priests lived appeared deserted except for two Congolese army trucks in the mission yard.

The U.N. spokesman called the pilots' report a "disquieting" development. But a spokesman said the U.N. command could not help because the nearest U.N. troops are 200 miles away in Albertville.

The spokesman said the United Nations was unable to air-lift troops to the attacked area because they would be outnumbered and helicopters would be "sitting ducks" for ground fire. The U.N. command does not control any airfields near Sola.

U.N. Can't Help

The village was so far from U.N. forces it appeared impossible help could reach the priests and nuns in time if they had not already been slain.

The United Nations also announced that Col. Joseph Pakassa, commander of the Stanleyville forces believed responsible for the massacres of the missionaries at Kongo, has been arrested.

Pakassa, a cousin of former First Vice Premier Antoine Gizenga, was wanted for questioning in the Kongo massacre as well as the slaughter of 13 Italian U.N. airmen at Kindu in Kivu Province last November.

Armed Agents Smash Doors Of Building

READING, Pa. (UPI)—Agents, armed with sledge hammers and automatic rifles, broke down the doors of a little-used building early today and seized more than 100 persons in what was described as "one of the largest gambling raids ever made on the East Coast."

Six men were arrested and 83 material witnesses were taken here as other agents simultaneously arrested others in Trenton and Camden, N.J., in connection with the alleged interstate dice operation.

Thomas B. McBride, special assistant to Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, said at least 10 more arrests were expected.

The agents, estimated at nearly 100, surrounded the building at 237 Cherry St., just off the main business district. Three agents with sledge hammers smashed in a barred front door and others rushed in with guns ready.

The occupants were rounded up and led outside to buses provided by the U.S. Army. They were taken to the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center at Kenhorst and Pershing Blvd., where they appeared before U.S. Commissioner Fred Steirer.

The majority of those named by authorities as aiding in the operation of the game posted bail ranging from $25 to $100.

Arrested on charges of being the operator of the Reading game was George Barrow, 57, of Yeadon, Pa. He posted $10,000 bail.

Also arrested here were Frank La Scalzo, 72, of Philadelphia; Simon Rudolph, 53, of Nesquehoning, Pa.; Leon Williams, 55, Reading, and Steve Drouncheck, 41, Minersville, Pa.

The five were charged with aiding and abetting interstate travel with intent to facilitate gambling.

Pasquale Pilla, 52, was arrested in Camden, N.J., on the same charge and Anthony La Monica, 38, was picked up in Trenton charged with "traveling interstate with intent to facilitate the carrying on of a business enterprise involving gambling" and with conspiracy.

The FBI also announced the arrest in Camden of Quirino Dentino, 30, 602 S. 4th St., Camden, who was taken into custody at his home. He was charged with conspiracy.

Another man arrested in Reading, Bennie Bonanno, 49, was charged by the FBI with being supervisor of the gambling operation.

Three Gaming Tables

McBride said three gaming tables were being operated by 27 men. He said agents confiscated "a large amount" of money from the tables and broke open a safe and found $25,000 in cash.

U.S. Atty. J. T. O'Keefe, who also accompanied the raiders, said the agents had the two-story building under surveillance for several weeks and knew that usually between 75 and 100 frequenters gathered there early on Saturday mornings.

McBride said the arrests were part of the FBI's continuing crackdown on interstate gambling under new federal statutes enacted last September.

Services Held For Fire Victim

Private funeral services were held at 10 o'clock today at the John C. Black Funeral Home, 314 Cedar St., Bristol, for Timothy Jackson Jr., three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Jackson.

The child died in a fire Wednesday at the family's three-room bungalow in Edgely. Three other Jackson children were saved by their mother and a neighbor.

Interment was in Bristol Cemetery.

The questionnaires will be distributed by the township park and recreation board to help the board plan future developments, according to Mrs. William Procter, board secretary.

Mrs. Procter said the method of distribution had not been determined. The cooperation of the schools will be requested in having school children carry the questionnaires home, she said.

More Snow For Midwest

By United Press International

More snow plagued the weather-weary Midwest and Rocky Mountain areas today, while gale-force winds battered northern California.

Freezing rain and drizzle occurred over much of the Southeast. Temperatures stayed far below zero in the icebox states of Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Philip and Huron, S.D., reported arctic-like temperatures of 23 below zero early today. The temperature was 14 below in Minneapolis and only four above with snow falling in Kansas City, Mo.

Snow fell over the Pacific Northwest, the northern and central Rockies and the central plains. A belt of falling snow covered the middle Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes states, the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic Coast states.

In Oregon the snow clogged roads and highways and made travel hazardous. One person died and two more were seriously injured in accidents on the treacherous highways.

Up to 7 inches of new snow was reported in parts of Missouri Friday night, 6 to 8 inches in southern Illinois and 5 inches in northern Kentucky.

Early Friday below-freezing temperatures extended across the nation north of a line from the northern California coast, south-eastward to central Texas, then northeast through central Tennessee and across southern Virginia.

Little relief from the heavy snowfall was in store for the Rocky Mountain and Great Plains states. The weather Bureau said a "potentially severe" storm was forming in the west and would cross the central Rockies tonight, reaching the Plains States tomorrow. It predicted near-blizzard conditions for some areas and heavy snow alerts were posted for northwest Kansas and central Nebraska.

Modesty Makes Thief Richer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A sneak thief was $180 richer today because of a bulky merchant ship captain's modesty.

In any event, here I am in Hyderabad where you notice another of these annoying contrasts. Hyderabad is a city of 800,000, yet it appears more a great country town.

I know something of taxi-cab rides in Philadelphia, New York, Rome, Paris, Stockholm, Copenhagen and Bombay.

You've never had a real thrill until you get in a cab in Hyderabad. There are no speed limits. Every driver is a speed maniac.

Try riding down Main St. at 50 miles an hour dodging other cabs, teams of oxen, herds of water buffalo, thousands of bicyclists, tongas, scooter taxis, buses, dogs, goats, sheep and cows — all insisting on the right of way.

It's bad enough in the daytime, at night it's worse, much worse. As a matter of fact it's murder. You see, these buffaloes, cows, goats and sheep have no headlights. Or tail-lights.

For one reason or another, they are exempt by law from which they get more protection than people.

Two Commissioners Defend Pay Raises

H. Miller, chief deputy clerk of the board of assessment, said quarter sessions; $700 to George J. Ault, purchasing agent and $465 to William T. Mullin, surplus food director.

He also criticized a raise of $737 to William M. Carlin, Jr., deputy prothonotary.

"We are appreciative of the Economy League report," said Boyer, chairman of the commissioners. And in 90 to 95 per cent of the cases we adopted the pay scales it recommended.

"But we realized there were mistakes in it in the interpretation of jobs. It is our duty as commissioner to take care of any inequities that may arise," Boyer said. "In some cases the recommended salaries were higher than what we felt they should be. We did what we thought was right."

Examples Of Errors

Boyer cited as examples of errors the Economy League's designations of Miller, Carlin and Deputy Register of Wills C. Herbert Haldeman as "clerk-typists," for a top salary of $4,381. "Ault has many more duties now as purchasing agent," Boyer said. "All purchases are now made by Ault. He used to make only purchases over $50. This new system will save many times his raise," Boyer said. There is much more surplus food being handled now, Boyer said, in citing the raise given to Mullin.

Andrews said the Economy League recommendations were followed "90 per cent of the time. I did not team up with Boyer against Bodley," Andrews said. "I considered each individual employee on his own merits. In some instances I was the compromiser on the board."

The salary board consists of the county commissioners, Controller William R. Cameron and the row offices whose employees are discussed.

Cameron, who draws $10,500 as controller, was given a $2,700 position, in addition, with the employees' pension fund. Howard G. Krupp, former county controller, was given a $7,200 - a year position as consultant.

Pay Raises
Miller was raised in pay from $5,040 to $5,882. Ault was raised from $6,500 to $7,200, Mullin from $6,000 to $6,465 and Carlin and Haldeman from $6,000 to $6,737.

Not given a pay raise were Frederick E. Ziegler, Bucks County GOP chairman who as chief investigator for the board of assessments draws $6,740, and solicitors for the various row offices.

County Solicitor Samuel S. Gray, Jr., keeps his salary of $12,000. William J. F. Bell, filling the new position of assistant county solicitor, will receive $5,000.

Dr. William J. Meyer, director of the Bucks County Health Department, was raised from $13,979 to $14,659 and Lorenz D. Morgan, his environmental sanitation director, from $10,954 to $11,501.

Executive Directors Franklin C. Wood, of the Planning Commission, was raised from $11,500 to $12,217 and Robert W. Pierson, of the Park Board, from $11,000 to $11,165.

Prison Guards
The prison guards, the only group to work a constant 40-hour week, were raised from $4,000 each to up to $4,816, based on seniority. Warden Earl D. Handy was raised from $4,800 to $5,300 and his wife, Marion, the matron, from $2,800 to $3,000.

John Ford and Mrs. Helen Kelly, in the new positions, of registration inspector, were given $2,500 each. For the new and unfilled position of court administrator, a salary of $7,500 was established.

The highest paid deputy sheriff is Walter Scheetz, who is expected to be chief deputy. Scheetz who was sworn in this week, gets $5,882.

L. John Hutton, chairman of the board of assessment, was given $6,500 and members Mrs. Mary Howe and Nicholas Yunger, Jr., $6,000 each.

Other salary increases are: Harold F. Hellyer, Sr., chief clerk of the board of elections, $6,000 to $6,120; Edward L. Pearce, chief clerk of the commissioners, $5,900 to $6,737.

Claude L. Kern, chief clerk of the registration commission, $6,000 to $6,120; Chief Assessor James Gemmill, Jr., $6,740 to $7,200; Frank Scordia, head of the tax map department, $5,640 to $5,760.

John G. Fetterolf, sealer of weights and measures, $5,520 to $5,882; Assistant District Attorney Edward G. Biester, Jr., and Ward F. Clark, $4,800 to $5,747; Assistant D. A. Rowland Sykes, $4,800 to $5,131; new Assistant D. A. William H. Eastburn, 3d., $5,131.

Chief County Detective Clarence Irwin, $6,500 to $7,000. Detective Thawley Hayman, $5,500 to $6,000. Detective Frank Jacob, $5,000 to $6,000.

Robert W. Shields, chief juvenile court officer, $6,020 to $6,932. Boyer said the commissioners did not set up a county personnel department, as recommended by the Economy League.

"The commissioners have the responsibility of hiring and overseeing workers," he said. "I don't think the people elected to us to delegate this authority."

Going In Circles

How does Bucks County rate as a carefully planned community?

Among the very best, according to an article entitled "Bucks County KO's Chaos" in this month's Greater Philadelphia magazine.

The article gives Bucks County Industrial Development Committee a pat on the back and attributes to it much of Bucks County's success in becoming an economically balanced community.

"Bucks has attained national recognition as the model comprehensively planned community combining a sense of tradition and artistic preservation with progressive government and economic foresight," the article states.

The article describes how, in less than four years, the development corporation brought in 35 new firms and assisted 12 local firms employing 7,240 persons.

This employment, both created and maintained, provided a means of support for 48,000 people.

The magazine asks, "Does Bucks County offer industry a favorable business climate?" A survey conducted by the Philadelphia Industrial Development Corp. showed that compared with seven other communities in Greater Philadelphia and New Jersey, Bristol Township was the least expensive place of the eight to do business in, according to the article.

Our apologies to Mrs. William H. Oettinger, Going In Circles reported yesterday that she became a mother Jan. 10. No such thing. A case of mistaken identity.

With a yearly budget of five million dollars, the Pennsbury Joint School Board, which governs 15-schools in Lower Bucks County and pays its administrative chief $19,500 a year, still can't afford to provide one little press table at its regular meetings.

Among gifts received by Livingston Joyce, retired Bristol Borough engineer, at a testimonial dinner Wednesday night was one from the Fidelity Savings and Loan Association of Bucks County.

The gift was erroneously attributed to the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Company in the news account of the dinner in Thursday's paper.
